Russ' Bass' Fort Worth Chili Burger

Because we won't allow National Burger Month to come and go without sharing a some patty news we'd like to pass along word from Del Frisco's Grille. The restaurant has been celebrating burger month with special offerings at its three North Texas location. The Fort Worth branch in Sundance Square is serving a doozy christened the Russ Huey's Bass' Fort Worth Chili Burger in dedication to the memory and talents of former executive chef Russ Huey.

The Dallas store's burger takes its name from the neigborhood it calls home. The Uptowner is a snazzy dish of truffle oil, mushrooms, Brazos Valley Cheese brie from Waco, Texas, and arugula. Executive chef Antonio Zamora says, "We take two Prime beef patties, herb-roasted wild shiitake, portobello, oyster, and crimini mushrooms, and top it with local creamy brie cheese, crunchy, peppery arugula tossed in truffle vinaigrette, and finishing it with a sweet basil aioli on an Empire Bakery brioche bun."

The Del Frisco's Grille in Southlake, Texas, is offering the Lone Star Prime Cheeseburger, which true to its name tacks on beef brisket with jalapeños and cheese. "This burger is made from local ingredients, has a sweet tangy barbecue sauce, and the candied jalapenos are sweat with a little heat that hits the backside of your throat," explains executive chef Aaron Henschen

So stop in at a Del Frisco's Grille for one of the specials, all of which comes with frites seasoned with sea salt and the chef's recommend pairing it with the Adult Milkshake, made with Nocello walnut liqueur, crème de cacao chocolate liqueur, and vanilla ice cream. Time is running out.
